MUSEUM EXHIBITS

Life Nodes represent interconnected systems of Earth, Air, Fire & Water

Through play, children administer the essential elements of life so that the Life Nodes may thrive.

TREE

Tree represents the plant kingdom within the interdependent system of Hansen Dam.

DOGBEAR

Dogbear represents the animal world on a huge scale. Dogbear responds to the care of children who give her water to drink and air to breathe.

MAKING YOUR HANDPRINTS

To make your custom handprint(s) please follow these directions carefully:

1. You may use your hand or your child's or grandchild's.
2. Clean your hand and remove jewelry.
3. Using a black ball point pen and a blank white 8.5x11 piece of paper.
  - a. Place your hand on the paper palm-side down.
  - b. Trace the outline of your hand with one single continuous line.
  - c. Tracing needs to be neat and clean. Please do not use pencil and do not re-trace the line.
4. Sign or print your name (or have the child write his/her name) in the palm of the hand.
  - a. Signatures or family names only please. (i.e.: The Smith Family)
  - b. Please do not re-trace your name.
5. Complete the form and return the form, tracing, and payment to the address provided.
6. Please note:
  - a. If tracing is not done correctly, we will use the template format and write your name for you.
  - b. Orders cannot be processed until payment in full and hand tracings are received.

Once your information has been processed, you and/or your gift recipients will receive a handprint engraved with our logo and "Charter Member" as seen in this picture on the front of this brochure.

OUR HISTORY...

Established in 1979, the Children's Museum of Los Angeles has served nearly five million children and their families in Los Angeles and has been recognized as a leader in the field of children's education. Our soon-to-open state-of-the-art 57,000 square-foot home in the San Fernando Valley will serve children from toddlerhood up through elementary school age. Its innovative exhibits and programs will provide an imaginative space where children can explore ideas, produce creations, and communicate thoughts that reach beyond the realm of their everyday experiences.
